From My Heart...

Cal Ripken, a tremendous baseball player, played in 2632 consecutive baseball games. This is a record that may stay in the books forever; he will certainly be remembered forever as a legend in the game.

Most sports records are set when a player gets on a hot streak — he has a good game or a good month or even a good season. Ripken's record is the result of a 'hot streak' that lasted more than 16 years. Day after day he simply took the next step in the right direction, one game at a time. Something many people don't know about Ripken is that during his first year as a pro — while playing minor league ball in West Virginia — he made his mark in a different way: he committed a league-leading 33 errors at short-stop.

It wasn't a good start, and since his dad was already well-known in the world of baseball, critics said he was just an over-rated kid, not good enough for life in the big leagues. But Cal kept taking one more step in the right direction, one game at a time. Later in his career he went 95 consecutive games without making an error, and committed only three in an entire season — another record he holds. Ripken's habit of taking one more step took him on a journey from worst to first.

For many, getting over Covid-19 can be a new starting point in your life. I believe God wants to pour out His grace in your life. He wants to change you through and through. He wants to give you victory over sin, and the power to live the life of your dreams. Today, if you feel like you're the worst, he wants to help you move in the direction of becoming first.

Paul said, "For I am the least of the apostles. In fact, I'm not even worthy to be called an apostle after the way I persecuted God's church. But whatever I am now, it is all because God poured out his special favor on me -- and not without results." (1 Corinthians 15:9-10)

God is ready to pour out his grace -- His special favor -- in your life, too. Accept it and take that next step in his direction.

Bro. Charles
