From My Heart...

Can you imagine what Jesus wants us to do in life? I honestly believe He would say, "I want you to be a servant." In all my life, I cannot recall anybody ever saying that when he grew up he wanted to be a servant. It sounds lowly, humiliating and lacking in dignity.

That's the life Jesus has called us to, a life of servanthood.

It does not fit society's or even our own definition of success. The road of service is the road to spiritual maturity and success in God's Kingdom.

Those who have "grown up" are those who have embraced a life of service.

If we are not willing to be a servant, serving God by serving others, then we cannot follow Jesus. Jesus walked the road of sacrifice and servanthood.

It's easier to admire Jesus than to follow Jesus.

It's easier to sing about Jesus than serve like Jesus.

It's easier to learn about Jesus than live like Jesus.

He takes us places that our pride does not want to go.

I read this statement somewhere and I believe it applies to modern day Christianity. "The main problem in the church is that we have people following a crucified Savior who have a totally un-crucified ego."

A Sunday School teacher asked her young elementary aged students what they did to help around the house. Some said they cleaned their room, helped with dishes, fed the dog, swept the floor or took out the garbage. One little boy hadn't said anything so the teacher asked what he did to help around the house. He said, "I stay out of the way."

Too many of us approach our service to the church and for the Gospel that way. If we stay out of the way and don't make it harder for the rest of them, then that's my contribution. The Gallup Poll said only 10% of the people in an average church are active in personal ministry. It goes on, 50% of people in churches say they have no interest in serving.

Service, for a Christian, is not an event on the calendar. It is a way of life. Please join us today in a special day of service. If you're in a LifeGroup, there is a place designated for you to do. If you're not in a LifeGroup, just pick one of the places and show up. Our chairmen of the deacons, Mark Kuykendall said it best in an email he sent out, "come encourage others, but I have an idea you're going to end up being the one who is encouraged most." Amen! See you this afternoon!!!
