

Lead Me To Some Soul Today

Lead me to some soul today,
O teach me Lord just what to say
Friends of mine are lost in sin
' And cannot find their way.

Few there are who seem to care
And few there are who pray
Melt my heart and fill my life
Give me one soul today.

FROM MY HEART...

As we come to the end of 2020, I was reminded of the story in Dr. W.A. Criswell's biography that illustrates how you can never measure the impact of your ministry. Dr. Criswell tells about the day of his conversion: It was Autumn, 1920. His church was in a revival and Criswell received permission to skip school to attend a special mid-day meeting.

At the close of the service, W.A. responded to the invitation and accepted Christ as his Savior. Seven years later he was licensed to preach. He soon began a lifetime of ministry, including 55 years as pastor of First Baptist Church of Dallas. He wrote more than 50 books, led untold thousands to Christ, trained hundreds for the ministry. He was one of the most influential pastors in America.

The man who preached that 1920 revival which changed the course of Criswell's life was John Hicks. Years later as Hicks lay dying in Baylor Hospital, his friend Wallace Basset sat with him during his final moments. Hicks said, "Wallace, my life is over, my preaching days are done, and I've never done anything for Jesus. I've failed, Wallace. I've failed." John Hicks never knew about the special contribution he had made to the kingdom of God: how one revival meeting held in a small Texas town -- and specifically one sermon preached on an Autumn morning -- touched the heart of a young boy who would, in turn, touch the lives of millions in the years to come.

The words of Paul come to mind in 1 Timothy 4:13-14, "Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine. Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands of the presbytery."

Maybe you can't see the full results of your work at this moment. Maybe today your years of sacrifice and hard work resemble nothing. You've accomplished things that you don't know about -- and you may never know about them on this side of glory.

What appears to be failure sometimes isn't failure at all. Stay devoted to your work for the Kingdom of God. Do not neglect your calling. Do not neglect your gift. And during those days when measurable results remain elusive: do not give in to despair. God is using you.

What a tremendous way to exit 2020 and prepare us for 2021. The final results are not in until Judgement Day...so let's covenant together to do more for the glory of God in 2021 than ever before...and leave the results to God!
